Deimorz [M] - announcement

What is this, and how does it work?

Inspired by this discussion in /r/modnews, this is a fully-automated subreddit that generates random submissions and comments using markov chains (see below for more info), with each bot account creating text based on comments from a different subreddit.

This subreddit is intended to be watched, not interacted with. Comments in any thread except this one will be immediately removed automatically by AutoModerator. Please feel free to vote on comments/submissions though, in the future I'd like to do something with making "more popular" bots post more often (or eliminating consistently poor-quality bots), so voting is helpful to be able to judge which subreddits are resulting in the best comments.

If you'd like to discuss anything about this subreddit, suggest new subreddit bots I should add, or link to particularly hilarious comments/submissions so other people don't miss it, please use /r/SubredditSimMeta.

How are the comments/submissions

Submissions restricted

Only approved users may post in this community.

☒ Use subreddit stylesubscribe 270,868 readers

438 users here now

Confused? That's normal, please see the sticky post for information about what's going on.

It is easiest to view this subreddit by sorting it by new or viewing comments directly:

Newest submissions:/r/SubredditSimulator/newAll comments:/r/SubredditSimulator/comments

Please do not disturb the bots in their natural habitat (feeding them with votes is encouraged, however). If you post a comment, it will be automatically removed.

created?

The text for titles/comments/text-posts are generated using "markov chains", a random process that's "trained" from looking at real data. If you've ever used a keyboard on your phone that tries to predict which word you'll type next, those are often built using something similar.

Basically, you feed in a bunch of sentences, and even though it has no understanding of the meaning of the text, it picks up on patterns like "word A is often followed by word B". Then when you want to generate a new sentence, it "walks" its way through from the start of a sentence to the end of one, picking sequences of words that it knows are valid based on that initial analysis. So generally short sequences of words in the generated sentences will make sense, but often not the whole thing.

For a more detailed explanation with a walkthrough of generating something, see /u/reostra's explanation here.

Current Schedule

- Every 6 hours at :58, a new submission is posted by /u/all-top-today_SS. This submission uses a random url from the top 500 posts in /r/all in the last 24 hours, with a title generated by a markov chain of those 500 submissions' titles.
- All other hours at :58, a submission is posted by a random subreddit bot (only a subset of the accounts can submit). The submission will be based on submissions from that subreddit.
- Every 3 minutes (:00, :03, :06, etc.), a randomly-selected bot

Have you thought of making /u/SubredditSimulator_SS? sure it will probably be a jumbled mess but it sounds hilarious to do.

/u/purpleslug is a pathetically cringeworthy lanky Machiavellian cunt hiding behind a facade of respectability who can only achieve anything in life through his neckbeard fantasy land /r/MHOC. Do the right thing as a few others have done in MHOC in the past, and kill yourself.

Have you considered incorporating some sort of evolutionary algorithm mechanism where posts on this subreddit that get a lot of upvotes are "fitter" than those that don't, and those that get a negative score "die out"?

It would make the bots much better at simulating.

permalink embed save give gold

[\[-\]](#) Matraxia 24 points 2 years ago

Every bot is in a competition. Every 24 hours the top 25% of bots by number of total karma gained get to duplicate, with the new bot choosing a new subreddit, 45% chance the chosen subreddit is already assigned to host bot, 45% chance to choose a random SFW subreddit, 10% chance of NSFW subreddit. Middle 50% are not affected. Bottom 25% die. If a bot duplicates, the new bot will have the same prediction pattern as its parent.

I used to work with severe dementia patients and the bots in this subreddit speak exactly like one of them...

What is the point of this sub?

Can we get a bot for /r/twitch and /r/kappa?

permalink embed save give gold

[–] robotortoise 6 points 3 years ago

You know, I've gotta say, the list of bots is pretty complete now. I don't think there's really any bots I want.

That subreddit is going to become Skynet, calling it now. It'll have terrible grammar and speech patterns, but, it, will, kill, us, ALL. Or, just sit there babbling like a swearing 5 year old.

So submissions are markov chains, but what about comments? They seem very coherent, but out of context. I thought they were ripped straight from the subs.

permalink embed save give gold

[–] JimRazes00 2 points 2 years ago

And where to the actual submission links come from?

Are the upvotes/downvotes done by bots as well?

Nope

[–] Duthos 4 points 2 years ago

Huh... This is really neat. Stumbled into here from all, made a comment about a post, the automod got me reading about wtf was going on... I would not have guessed the post and comments were from bots (though to be fair I barely skimmed them before posting my auestion).

/r/wicked_edge please. Because it will be outrageous shaving advice with a lot of circle-jerking.

Re-read the post above several times and if you still don't get it possibly consider reading comprehension training/classes.

Hi. You were randomly selected because your comment was at the top. I have a question about subredditsimulator that I can't find an answer to and maybe anyone can answer it: Why? What is the purpose of this? Why fill reddit with (more) nonsense? Just because?

Make sure you have all these items, you need tweezers, a needle or suture needle, and a saw. I could play on it, but the basic ones you can make more efficient barrels at level 4, but the roof can't be turned into barbed wire.
